The eight primary parts of speech are:

1. Nouns: Name people, places, things, or ideas (e.g., John, London, book, happiness).
2. Pronouns: Replace nouns (e.g., he, she, it, they).
3. Verbs: Describe actions or states of being (e.g., eat, run, sleep, exist).
4. Adjectives: Describe nouns, making them more specific (e.g., big, blue, old, beautiful).
5. Adverbs: Describe verbs, adjectives, or other adverbs (e.g., quickly, slowly, very, too).
6. Prepositions: Show the relationship between a noun or pronoun and another word in the sentence (e.g., on, in, at, to, from).
7. Conjunctions: Connect words, phrases, or clauses (e.g., and, but, or, so, because).
8. Interjections: Express emotions or surprise (e.g., oh, wow, hey).

Once you understand the different parts of speech, you can start to put them together to form sentences. A basic English sentence consists of two main parts: the subject and the predicate.

The subject is the noun or pronoun that performs the action of the verb.

The predicate is the verb and any other words that describe the action or state of being.

For example, in the sentence "The boy eats an apple," "the boy" is the subject and "eats an apple" is the predicate.

Sentences can be simple or complex. Simple sentences have only one subject and one verb. Complex sentences have multiple clauses (groups of words that contain a subject and a verb). Clauses can be joined together using coordinating conjunctions (and, but, or) or subordinating conjunctions (because, so that, although).

Punctuation marks are used to clarify the meaning of sentences and make them easier to read. The most common punctuation marks in English are:

1. Period (.): Ends a sentence.
2. Comma (,): Separates items in a list, introduces a clause, or sets off nonessential information.
3. Semicolon (;): Separates two closely related independent clauses.
4. Colon (:): Introduces a list, explanation, or quotation.
5. Apostrophe (')
